OUR ORGANIZATION

Girls Code the World is a 501(c)(3) domestic nonprofit corporation that provide opportunities, resources and role models for young girls in STEM-related fields through a series of education programs and extended mentorships.

EDUCATIONAL PROGRAMS

GCTW offers in-person and virtual interdisciplinary STEM education. Our curriculum reaches across different fields, including engineering, computer science and natural sciences. Our sessions are led by a diverse group of women to education girls ages 8 to 12 years old.

MENTORSHIP OPPORTUNITIES

Women who choose to be mentors in GCTW have a variety of options as far as running educational programs, developing technical teaching and leadership skills, and being connected with a younger woman or girl in STEM to offer advice and resources.

PROFESSIONAL DEVELOPMENT

Joining the GCTW community means being connected to a network of women in all stages of their academic and professional careers. We bring their stories and other resources together through our newsletters and social media.

A sponsorship of GCTW is an investment in future women's STEM leaders. Your sponsorship is essential for the growth of our outreach, programming and presence in the Philadelphia region. Sponsorships also show your organization's commitment to the future of the STEM fields, with a focus on diversity, equity, and inclusion by offering opportunities to young girls from different socioeconomic backgrounds, races, and ethnicities.
